Afternoon tea was introduced in England by Anna, the seventh Duchess of Bedford, inthe year 1840.

The Duchess would become hungry around 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The evening meal in the household was served fashionably late at eight o'clock, thus leaving a long period of time between lunch and dinner.

The Duchess asked that a tray of tea, bread and butter and a cake be brought to her roomduring the late afternoon. This became a habit and she began inviting friends to join her.

This pause for tea became a fashionable social event. During the 1880's upper-class and Society women would change into long gowns, gloves and hats for their afternoon tea which was usually served in the drawing room between four and five o'clock.
